DONALD D. MacFARLANE NO. 96-CY-3/02 -LRS Plaintiff, v. REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION KAY WALTER, et al., Defendants.

Before the court is defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment and Dismissal. Ct. Rec. 20. On hearing without oral argument, plaintiff appeared pro se, and Assistant Washington State Attorney General Colleen B. Evans represented defendant.

Plaintiff is an inmate incarcerated at Airway Heights Correction Center (AHCC). Plaintiff filed suit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, claiming that defendants violated his First and Fourteenth Amendment rights by prohibiting delivery of publications to which he subscribed, Prison Legal News and the American Civil Liberties Union National Prison Project Journal, without issuing mail These publications are sent as non-profit rejection notices. third-class mailings. Plaintiff maintains that he received these publications while housed at other Washington state correctional Plaintiff argues that AHCC's prohibition against bulk facilities. mail has been unconstitutionally applied to his subscription publications. Defendants claim that they have a legitimate penological interest in prohibiting delivery of "bulk mail," a category in which plaintiff's subscription publications are included. Further, defendants maintain that plaintiff was given adequate due process by virtue of notice of the bulk mail policy.

The constitutionality of AHCC's prohibition against nonprofit paid subscription publications, including Prison Legal News, was recently ruled upon in this district. In Miniken v. Walter, et al., No. CS-97-407-JLQ, the Judge Quackenbush found that subscription publications sent via non-profit third-class mail, or "standard mail," did not fall within the definition contained in AHCC Field Instruction 450.100. Thus, the court ruled that such publications cannot be denied delivery on the basis of the "bulk mail" definition. Moreover, Judge Quackenbush found that the defendants "have set forth no rational connection between the prohibition of non profit paid subscription publications such as Prison Legal News and any legitimate neutral penological purpose." Miniken v. Walter, et al., No. CS-97-407-JLQ, Memorandum Opinion and Order Granting Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment at p. 12. Additionally, Judge Quackenbush ruled that plaintiff Miniken's due process rights were violated by the defendants failure to notify either plaintiff or the publisher of the rejection of the publication. Finally, Judge Quackenbush held that defendants were not entitled to qualified immunity. Accordingly, Judge Quackenbush enjoined defendants from denying delivery of subscription publications sent "standard mail" and awarded plaintiff Miniken damages. As such, under the law of this /// district, the AHCC policy at issue is unconstitutional as applied to plaintiff's subscription publications.

Furthermore, the doctrine of issue preclusion mandates the same result in this case. Issue preclusion is appropriate when:

(1) the issue decided in the prior adjudication is substantially identical to the issue in the subsequent action; (2) there was a final judgment on the merits; and (3) the party against whom the estoppel is asserted was a party to or in privity with a party in the first action. Durkin v. Shea & Gould, 92 F.3d 1510, 1516 (9th Cir. 1996), cert. denied, 117 S. Ct. 1553 (1997), citing Pension Trust Fund for Operating Eng'rs v. Triple A Machine Shop, Inc., 942 F.2d 1457, 1462 (9th Cir. 1991).

In this instance, plaintiff raises the same issue that was the subject of the Miniken decision: whether the AHCC practices of prohibiting delivery of subscription publications mailed via the standard rate and failing to give rejection notices for such publications violate inmates First and Fourteenth Amendment rights. Judge Quackenbush issued a final judgment on the merits and found that the AHCC practice was unconstitutional. All parties in this actions were either a named party in Miniken or in privity thereto as employees of the Department of Corrections. Finally, application of the doctrine will not work an injustice. Quite the contrary; to fail to apply the doctrine of issue preclusion would cause an injustice. Therefore, the undersigned finds that judgment should be rendered in favor of plaintiff.

The only remaining issue involves whether the claims against defendants Ervin and Riveland should be dismissed. Defendants Ervin and Riveland claim that they did not personally participate in the violations of plaintiff's First Amendment rights and therefore must be dismissed from the action. Plaintiff agrees that dismissal of defendant Ervin is appropriate. However, plaintiff opposes defendant's argument with respect to defendant Riveland. Plaintiff claims that defendant Riveland had knowledge of AHCC's practice regarding personal subscription publication sent via bulk rate mail and approved this policy.

In order to hold a defendant liable for damages, plaintiff must show that the defendant either participated in or directed the violations, or knew of the violations and failed to act to prevent them. Taylor v. List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989); Leer v. Murphy, 844 F.2d 628, 633 (9th Cir. 1988). In this case, defendant Riveland knew that AHCC destroyed, without notice, personal subscription publications sent non-profit third-class mail. Apparently, the publisher of Prison Legal News wrote to defendant Riveland in October of 1995, long before plaintiff filed this action. See plaintiff's First Amended Complaint, Exhibit 2(d). In fact, defendant Riveland directed Director of Prisons Tom Rolfs to respond to this letter, in which Mr. Rolfs defended the policy at AHCC. Id., Exhibit 2(E). Further, in a response to admissions, defendant Riveland admitted that AHCC's policy had been brought to his attention. Ct. Rec. 40, Exhibit 12. of such evidence, it is clear that defendant Riveland knew of AHCC's policy administered in violation of plaintiff's First and Fourteenth Amendment Rights. Therefore,

IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that:

- 1. Defendant Riveland's motion for dismissal for lack of personal participation be DENIED, and defendant Ervin's motion for dismissal for lack of personal participation be GRANTED.
- 2. Plaintiff's Motion for Summary Judgment regarding violations of his First Amendment rights and Fourteenth Amendment right to procedural due process be GRANTED and Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment regarding the same be DENIED in accordance with the ruling in Miniken v. Walter, et al., No. CS-96-407-JLQ.
- 2. Defendants be PERMANENTLY ENJOINED from prohibiting delivery of an inmate's paid-for subscription to a profit or nonprofit publication on the sole basis that the publication is mailed via "standard mail," in accordance with the ruling in Miniken v. Walter, et al., No. CS-96-407-JLQ.
- 3. Plaintiff be AWARDED actual damages in addition to costs, with the deadline for submission of plaintiff's affidavit of costs and damages to be set by the referring judge. Plaintiff's actual damages are those suffered as a direct result of defendants' failure to deliver his subscription publications or Prison Legal News and the ACLU's National Prison Project Journal, the publications referenced in his Complaint.
